2013 Indiana Forage Day

Agenda (Time is EDST)

9:00 – 9:20 am: Check-in at “Walk by Faith
Community Church” parking area in Roann, Indiana

9:30 am: Chartered bus leaves church parking lot

9:30 - 12:30 pm: Farm visits to:

Flack Farms - Cash cropping hay
A major enterprise on Flack Farms is cash crop hay. Cash cropping hay has been done approximately fifteen years. Steve Flack will share experiences in the production and marketing of hay. A recent investment in a Steffen big bale conversion system will be discussed.

Stoltzfus Dairy - Pasture management
Daryl, Debbie and Jake Stoltzfus operate a pasture-based grazing system on their dairy farm. The Stoltzfus family will share their experiences as they transitioned to letting cows do the majority of the harvest.

12:30 pm: Lunch at the church

1:15 – 3:30 pm: Farm visits to:

Sweeten Hay Farm - Harvesting baleage
Making baleage is a technology that Jeremy Sweeten has used to get forages harvested in a timely matter. He will discuss management strategies to successfully make baleage. Weather permitting, baling and wrapping will be demonstrated.

Field demonstration site - Warm-season grasses for bioenergy
Purdue University is part of a cenUSA multistate project that is investigating the production of native warm-season grasses as a potential energy source. Grasses had a difficult time getting established during the 2012 drought; tour participants will determine plant stand and learn a proper technique to calibrate a drill.

3:30 pm: Board bus and travel back to church parking lot

Checks can be made payable to the Indiana Forage Council and mailed to:
